WHEN

Tuesday, September 16, 2014
3:30—5:00 p.m.

WHERE

Presidents Hall 3/4
The Penn Stater Conference Center Hotel
University Park Campus

Dr. Sue's dynamic and engaging presentation reflects his most recent research on how everyday verbal, nonverbal, and environmental slights, snubs, or insults, whether intentional or unintentional, have a powerful impact upon the psychological well-being of marginalized groups and affect their standard of living by creating inequities in education, employment, and health care. The presentation will focus specifically on microaggressions in higher education and will be followed by a question and answer period.

The annual joint reception of the Senior Faculty Mentor and the Forum on Black Affairs will follow this event to welcome new and returning faculty of color and African American faculty and staff. All are welcome to attend. If attending the reception, please RSVP to Eileen Williams at emj1@psu.edu by Wednesday, September 10.

This presentation is part of the Office of the Vice Provost for Educational Equity's ongoing series of Best Practices in Diversity and is co-sponsored by the Forum on Black Affairs; Assistant Dean for Multicultural Programs, College of Education; College of Health and Human Development, Office of Diversity Enhancement Programs; College of Information Sciences and Technology; Commission for Women; Commission on Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Equity; Commission on Racial/Ethnic Diversity; Department of Psychology and the BRIDGE Diversity Alliance; Diversity Enhancement Programs, Smeal College of Business; Multicultural Equity Programs, College of the Liberal Arts; Office of Educational Equity in the College of Earth and Mineral Sciences; Office of Graduate Educational Equity Programs; Office of Multicultural Affairs, College of Agricultural Sciences; Paul Robeson Cultural Center; Presidential Leadership Academy; Schreyer Honors College; Schreyer Institute for Teaching Excellence; University Libraries Diversity Committee; University Office of Global Programs.
